Railroads Disposed to Give Favorable Rates to Any New Manufactory-No Trouble About Land

A letter was received yesterday from the Lewiston works of Joliet, Ill., in which the writer inquired about the prospect in Den-ver for the removal of their immense plant, which at present occupies ten acres. The company employs 300 hands and manufactures a class of goods for which there is a regular and growing demand.

The letter states that no subsidy will be required if the market is in condition to receive a new enterprise and furnish the sup-port that is essential to success. The most important element that enters into the calculation of the corresponding company is the matter of freight rates. It is set forth that the Eastern country is glutted with manufacturing of all kinds, and profits have manuacturing of an kinds, and profits have tapered down to a point that hardly repays the investment. The company is looking towards the development of the Western states and the directors are of the opinion that there is more money and fewer bad debts west of the Nebraska line and south debts west of the Nebraska line and south into Mexico than in the overcrowded territory which is now occupied. The agent who received the letter is engaged in compiling idatistics and negotiating with the railroads for terms on shipments between benver, the Missouri river, New Mexico, Arizont and west to the coast. He reports a foverable preention from the railways Arizon and west to the coast. He reports a favorable reception from the railways and the prospect of making low rates an induceshent to the new concern are exceedingly flattering. Besides this there are owners of trackage property who are prepared to give a large track of land to any company that means business.

GARDEN TRUCK.

The Demand Away Ahead of the Supply.

The packing of vegetables and small fruits will receive a great impetus this year since the fact became known that the canning companies were not able to buy sufficient last year to keep their factories running long enough to supply half of the home demand. There has been a feeling among the farmers of Arapahoe county that if they paid more attention to fruits and garden truck the increase would react upon them by reducing values. To show there is no foundation for this fact it may be said that the principal company is not alone making contracts in advance but is sending out agents throughout the country tributary to Denver preaching the gospel of greater gains to be derived from vegetable raising. The Longmont company, which was unfortunate last season in having its factory destroyed at a time when crops were maturing, will rebuild with greater expancity, but it is doubtful if the patented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used, as some peace of the control of the benefit of his health. No attented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used, as some peace of the control out of the benefit of his health. No attented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used, as some peace of the patented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used, as some peace of the patented method of the subject of the patented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used. As some peace of the patented method of the patented machinery for separating and peace of the patented method of the patented alone making contracts in advance but is sending out agents throughout the country tributary to Denver preaching the gospel of greater gains to be derived from vegetable raising. The Longmont company, which was unfortunate last season in having its factory destroyed at a time when crops were maturing, will rebuild with greater capacity, but it is doubtful if the patented machinery for separating and grading the peas will be used, as some people say it injures the product. Two other companies will put up more grocers' goods than ever before At Brighton considerable attention has been given this subject, which was deemed of such vital importance that it was decided to meet regularly and discuss the best mothods of disposing of their truck to the packers. A farmers' institute was organized, with J. M. Irwin, president; George R. Lee, vice president, and E. McChesney, secretary. As an additional incentive to industry a fair will be held in the fall for the display of choice fruits, flowers and wegetables, for which handsome premiums will be offered. That mustard will cut try quite a figure this year in the rain beit goes without saying, for since the publication of first results in The News there has been such a demand for seed that a carload had to be ordered from California. The seed is distributed free, the only reservation being that the grower must sell his croot to the supply farm at the same price that is quoted in New York on the day of sale. This will be converted into "Mustard of sale. This will be converted into "Mustard of sale. This will be converted into "Mustard of Francalse" and sold to jobbers in Chicago and other centers.

Contract Let to Bring It to Denver for the Government Building.
If the cadaver of the Colorado Stone association can be galvanized into a mo-ment's existence it should arise and protest against the action of the government ordering granite approaches for the old-new postoffice from Sioux Falls, S. D. By the term approaches is meant the sidewalk which will grace two sides of the building, on Arapahoe and Sixteenth street. Worse still, the contract was awarded to an Eastern firm with the usual concomitant of cheap labor and inferior work. This state is shipping a superior quality of flagging and dimension stone to the East and there appears no plauvible reason for the government to go outside the state for whatever stone it may require.

"There is another job in this contract like the woodwork deal," remarked a real estate agent yesterday. "When we cannot compete with stone that has to be hauled almost a thousand miles and laid by men who have hotel bills and transportation expenses added to the regular union scale of wages, it does seem as it the United states architect tries to give up the worst of it all the time."

CITY DIRECTORY.

Work Has Been Commenced on the Issue for This Year. Ballinger & Richards have their skilled corps of canvassers out on the sleuth for names of householders and residents who want to be included in the population of Denver. The canvass will, if possible, be more systematically conducted than ever, and a number of new checks have been devised in order to compet now men to make accurate and complete returns of the territory to which they are assigned. Every vacant house is reported to the superintendent, who files away the address until late in the canvass, when he orders a grand round-up, and if an entrance cannot be effected the agent of the house is visited, and he is pumped for information regarding the occupants, if any, or the names of inquirers. The latter have to be seen, and if they are going to rent the particular house in question, or any other not on the bist, their names are enrolled in the big book that is to serve as a guide to the public for the next twelve months.

The increase in population must be verified in the most exacting manner, so that the world may know how falsely Census Superintendent Porter's estimates were returned last year. The volume will appear with two columns to the page, and will be set in brovier, a type two sizes smaller than long prinner, which was used last year. This will make a smaller and more convenient book, but will allow for more names. The greatest difficulty at this time is to find the names of thousands who have temporarily been taken away from the city by the mining excitements in the mountains. Some of these are returning, and the romainder will be heard from later, when they have made a strike, but the directory man wots not of their whereabouts just now. The Velvet Glove Has Been Worn Out-Ald Solicited From Those Who Own

The city authorities have started in earnest in the annual spring campaign against dirt and they ask the help of the public in carrying it through to victory.

Whether Health Inspector Waterbury o somebody else cleans the alleys is a matter of indifference so long as they are cleaned and kept clean. In securing this end the department asks the co-operation of each

During the past three or four months it has not been possible to do much work on the alleys. Last week a gang was turned loose and discoveries were made which have caused the officers to throw up their hands. It seems as though all the builetins Consumption Causes Heavy Losses at Manhattan Beach. The glorious sunshine danced on the ice issued last summer by the dopartment were so much paper wasted. The greatest trouble is in the downtown district, where there at Manhattan beach and was reflected in a clear bright streak into the animal house, where the dromedary was humping herself about to easo the ennul of winter quarters. are innumerable hotels, restaurants and lodging houses and lazy janitors in charge of furnaces. The good furice in the bulletins has been forgotton. Ashes, garbage and ail sorts of rubbish have been thrown out and the coming of the summer sun is all that is needed to give to Denver a glue feature mell superior to the tamous colors. Old Roger, the elephant who was the inno-cent cause of a boy's death last spring, didn't seem to have outgrown sorrow for the sad event, for he swayed to and fro and shook his trunk with a vigorous swing that would have left little hope for John L. it he had come within range. One taste would have knocked him out quicker than he ever tapped the nose of an adversary with gentle agility. Roger was chained to all that is needed to give to Denver a glue factory smell superior to the famous odors of Cologne.

AN OCCASIONAL DATH.

The health department now rises to remark that who would be clean must take an occasional bath. People must help themselves. Men. who 'throw dirt into the alleys have no ousiness to kiek. Citizens are pointely requested to exercise a little common sense. If they would have the city pure and well taken care of, each must take at least a negative share in the work by doing nothing to increase it.

So far for the velvet glove. Now for the fron hand. People are asked to do wnat is decent and what they all know they should do, but it must be understood that something more than moral suasion will be exercised.

seen by a health officer going out and pouring slops on the street.

CAMPAION AGAINST DACILLI.

Chief Health Inspector Waterbury has been compelled to devote his time to the cleaning of paved streets but that work will be placed in other hands and he will be able to devote his attention hereafter to much more important sanitary work. The little general took command a couple of days since and has already routed the bacilli out of several alleys. In the rear of some hotels ash and garbage receptacles were found heaped full and overflowing. They have been ripped out and removed bodily despite the wails of the owners, who, however, subsided when told they were playing in big luck not to be thrown into jail where they should be.

The Inspector will have to ask for an increase of force, because he has not anywhere near nough men to cope with the problem before him. In many cases alleys will have to be gone over twice; the first time to take away everything loose and the second time to remove whatever imngled ice and dirt remains in corners. There are single blocks where it would cost a couple of hundred dollars to reprove the lee now because it is composed of blout one part of ice to three parts of mud, coal dust, etc., and the sun has little effect on it.

piring squeak and were dragged out and divested of their pelts while the remains were snugly interred in the interior of the African panther. This was a rare tid bit that probably reminded the feline of many dainty feasts in his tropical jungles.

Two ostriches and a chick went the way of the taxidermist and will soon reappear in some museum, where there will be no kicking about the price of nails. Both birds succumbed to the ravages of disease, congestion of the lungs cutting short their career when they were becoming useful and about to sprout their tall feathers, which would have yielded a neat annual revenue to the owner. Dr. Walters attended them in their dying struggle and sought to aliay pain by pouring quarts of castor oil down their capacious throats. To do this the birds were crowded into a corner by two keepers, who held them against the wall while a third administered the nauseating dose. The poor little chicken that was orphaned by the cruel climate became a proy to grief and strutted around, losing appetite and fuzzy covering, until one day he stepped into a crack between two planks of his cage and fractured one leg in two places. Denver could not furnish veterinarian skill to meet the emergency so the cruel carving knife that flourishes around Thanksgiving and Christmas was sharpened and the little fellow put out of his misery. The ostrich department is now reduced to four birds who are mopping in such a significant manner, that their owner in Coronado will probably decide to send them home to-day.

mules in the mines at Crested Butte have been the victims of treatment that even their stoical natures could not stand. They were cribbed, cabined and confined in a missit coal tunnel. The opening was too small for the mules or the males were too tall for the class of work at which they were employed. As a result they rasped their spines against the overhanging rock and when they proudly reared their heads it was at the risk of a fractured skull. Sugh are the allegations preferred against Foster, the pit boss, who is also accused of working the mules twenty-four hours for days at a time. When the mule kicked in the literal sense of the word he was clubbed and often beaten into unconsciousness, a fact of itself which attests the brutality of the drivers and men in charge. Frequently, it is said, the mules were so exhausted that they laid down and all the cursing and clubbing of their keepers could not induce them to get upon their feet. These were desperate cases and in order to prolong the agony and service the poor animal was dragged to the skip and sent up to the surface, where it was moved to an animal pospital which the company had to establish to reduce the each rate of the subterranean stock. One poor brute was in such bad shape when it came to the surface that it had to be shot, as there was no hope of restoring it to a condition of usefulness.

M. Van Osten, local agent of the humane society at Crested Butte, attempted an investigation and reported that he was driven off the property and threatened with death if he renewed his efforts to team anything about the animals. The society, claims that Justice Rankin of Crested Butte refused to issue a warrant for William Grant, superintendent, or the pit boss. These facts were mailed to Denver and Agent Thompson went to the mines to look after the interests of the dumb bruies. He was warmly received but intimidation did not go for he immediately enforced his authority by drawing up a warrant and serving it upon all parties concerned. The hearing has been set f reporter for THE NEWS to the house. It was found that instead of having her head chopped off with a hatchet, as at first reported, Mrs. Worrell was suffering from hysteries, probably induced by her husband's warlike demonstrations. She was given a sedative and her husband was placed behind the bars at the second division station by Officer Scrivner. Look Out.

A lurking malady is abroad which comes like a thief in the night, stealthily, and it is numbering its victims by thousands. Men are careless or indifferent. It is so pleasant to be out in the air. But it must be remembered that the air is charged with excessive mosture, which penetrates and chilis. The grip has become so optiemic that whole communities are prostrated. A peculiar feature of the malady is that ail so affected have rheumatic aches and pains, stiffness and soreness of the muscles and acute misery in the joints. All these symptoms indicate what ought to be done to prevent and cure. Good rubbing with St. Jacobs Oil, in time, will so strengthen and soothe that no further trouble will be had. For all rheumatic complaints, whether transient or chronic for years, for every form of pain, mild or violent, it is the best remedy of the age.

great was the merriment over the same. The tables were set at the back of the great room and people took turns without formality in going up to partake of the good things prepared by the ladies of the Sunday school who were the supreme dictators of the affair.

In the center of the floor was a space reserved for the pretitest and tiniest little tots that anyone ever dreamed of, who were with courtly grace the stately costumes of revolutionary days. Before taking their seats they were introduced to the audience, and each executed the disintiest of quaint curtesys. The entertainment was to assist in raising $1,000 subscribed by the Sunday school to the building fund of the church.
